

FOOTBALL IS BOOMING.

THE COLLEGE TEAMS ALL SHOW STEADY IMPROVEMENT.

PREPARING FOR THE BIG STRUGGLES—INTEREST ING GOSSIP REGARDING PUBLIC LEAGUE.

FOOTBALL is now in full sway, and until the wind-up of the season on Thanksgiving Day, Yale and Princeton, and Harvard and Pennsylvania come together for their annual games. Little else will be talked about by the followers of field sports. The great college teams are slowly but surely getting into condition for their annual games, and all that is needed is a little encouragement to make the players enter the game with all the zest and abandon peculiar to the sport.

The games played on Saturday by Yale, Princeton, and Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania showed a decided improvement all around. Harvard and Yale played their best games of the year, the Crimson defeating Dartmouth 36 to 0. Dartmouth did not get past the forty-line at any time during the game.

The University of Pennsylvania also showed up in particularly good form in the game at Eastern Park, Brooklyn, where the "Pennies" defeated the local champions 40 to 0. San Francisco Oct. 22 (Special).—The millionaire "Lucky" Baldwin, after twenty years on the turf, has decided to sell his string and retire from the turf during the coming winter. "I haven't the time to devote to the business," he said. "Having to require more attention than I can afford to give it. Other and more important interests occupy my time too fully. I have just returned from a trip of five months, and that is too long for a man to be away from business. During the two years I have been on the turf I have done well, and I am satisfied to retire on my laurels. Hence my attention will be devoted to breeding horses."

In speaking of his plans, Baldwin said he intended to hold his first sale about the middle of December. He has twenty-seven two-year-olds which he will auction off with the privilege of withdrawing if the prices offered do not suit. If lovers of good horseflesh will not know a good buy when they see it, the animals will be shipped to him. Baldwin has many connectors that have been carefully bred, his Santa Anita farm near Los Angeles being famous as a fine place for developing good stock on account of the excellent training given there. What is more, Baldwin's trainer for years, Charles E. Johnson, is one of the main reasons for the millionaire's retirement is that he doesn't think he received fair treatment on several Eastern tracks where the owners ran their own horses.

It is to take care of some horses, however, that Baldwin will be occupied, and he will be in New York at the end of the month.

ANOTHER part of his plan is to go to the University of Pennsylvania November 4. There he will be a spectator, and the game between the Tigers and the Blue and the White will probably be ignited in the Yale-Princeton game, as it will in the Yale-Harvard game.

"Sunny" McMaster, the veteran trainer at old Nasco was seen after the Princeton-Cornell game at Manhattan Field, and the veteran muscle-doctor was in excellent humor over the Tigers' emphatic victory. "Our boys are not in shape yet," said he. "I only expect to have the team in perfect condition before the game with the University of Pennsylvania November 4. I have not, however, given up the team. Our team is a slate heavier than last year, and I think it is stronger in several important positions. To shut out Cornell was our ambition, and the rule will probably be ignored in the Yale-Princeton game, as it will in the Yale-Harvard game."

People who saw Saturday's game at Manhattan Field could not help noticing that there was considerably more rough play than the occasion seemed to demand. King struck a Cornell man back of Cornell's line; and even the excuse that such a way could help Princeton was absolutely wanting. Even Captain "Doggie" Treadwell had his rivals rather roughly at times.

The remarkable growth of football teams in the last few years is responsible for the impression that a professional Football League is overruled. John M. Ward, the manager of the New-York Baseball Club, was an interested spectator at Manhattan Field on Saturday, and after the game asked his trainer what he thought about a professional league of football players.

"A professional football league may eventually come," said Ward. "But many obstacles lie in its way before such a scheme can gain the confidence and popularity of the public. There are plenty of men who could play football professionally, and play it well, but there are comparatively few who would do it. There is a certain romantic halo hovering over the college football player."
